How the ballots will work

Election Ballot

B I U ↳ ✎

All forms are anonymous, but require sign-in to prevent multiple votes. Please do not vote for position(s) you are running in. Email addresses will not be collected.

- First choice means 'who would you want in this position?' or 'who is your favorite?'
- Second choice means 'if your first choice was out of the race, who would you want?' or 'who is your second favorite?'
- Third choice means 'if your first and second choices were out of the race, who would you want?' or 'who is your third favorite?'
- You are not required to vote for all three choices, e.g. you may select only a first choice, or a first and second choice.

Candidates were asked for their preference in position. Each candidate will be checked for if they won their first choice race. If they did, they get that position, and they are out of the race for their other choices. If they didn't, they move on to their second choice (if it exists). When a candidate is removed from a race in this way, their votes are reallocated according to the voters' second choices (if they exist). The same happens for third choice, or until all positions are awarded.

Working with the Theme

Start with the theme

- Think of a bunch of interpretations
- Choose your favorite
- Now use that as your “theme”
- Think of a bunch of interpretations
- Choose your favorite
- Repeat until you have an idea

Whalen's Interactive Resume

www.linkedin.com/in/whalen/

+ Follow W

I'm an IT/Communications senior with a passion for design and interactivity. These passions combined with my skills in programming, art, and user-oriented thinking have put me down the path of a hobbyist game developer. To that end, I've gamified the sections of my resume—give them a play and learn more about my skills and experience!

Version Control (Git/GitHub)

Version Control (Source Control)

When you're working with multiple people on the same game simultaneously, consider using version control:

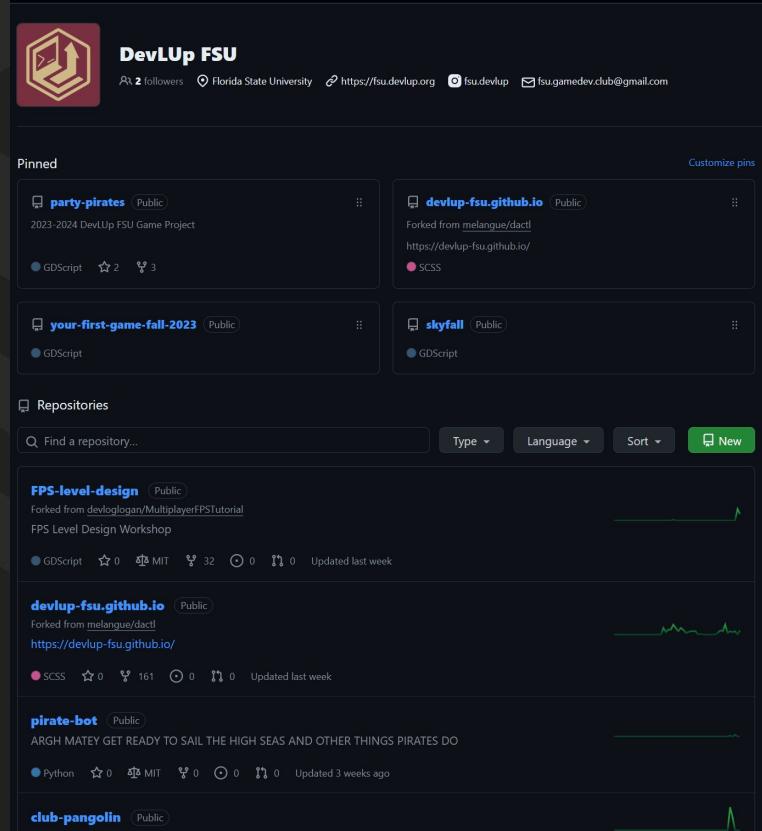

- Don't transfer files manually!
- Track changes to files
- Work on branches
- Ensures that your files are the same as your team members, or, if they are different, what the differences are

Git/Github

The most popular version control system is called Git, of which there is a hosting service and web interface called Github

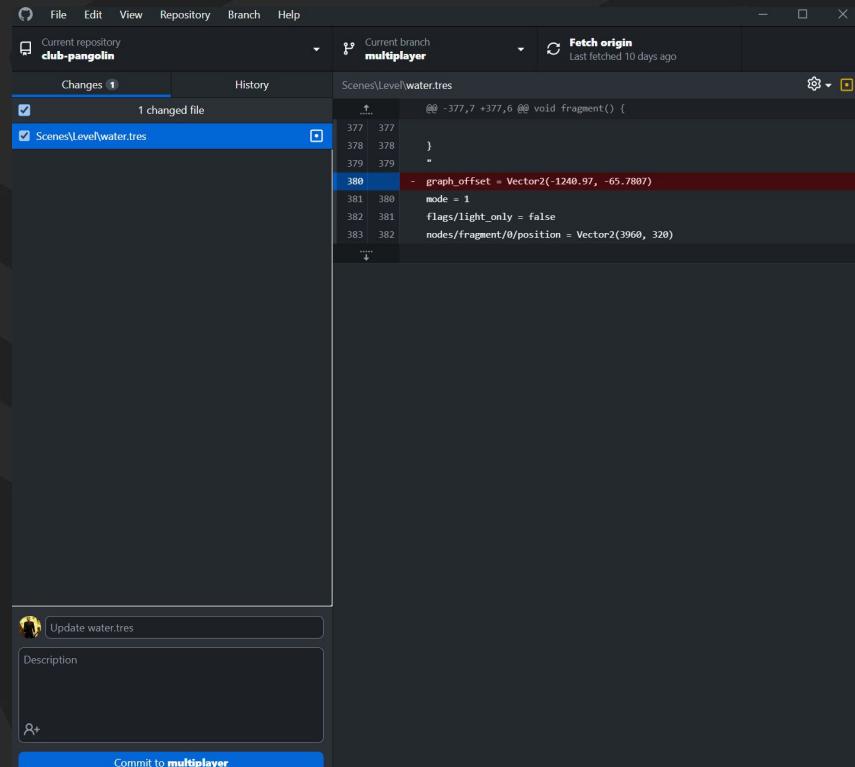

- We recommend their desktop app, Github Desktop, as your interface for using Git/Github
- We'll be able to help you use it over discord or at the Innovation Hub

Git/Github - Demo

We're going to:

- Create a godot game for use with git
- Create a Repo and upload it to github
- Have another user pull the project and make changes
- Have the initial user pull those changes

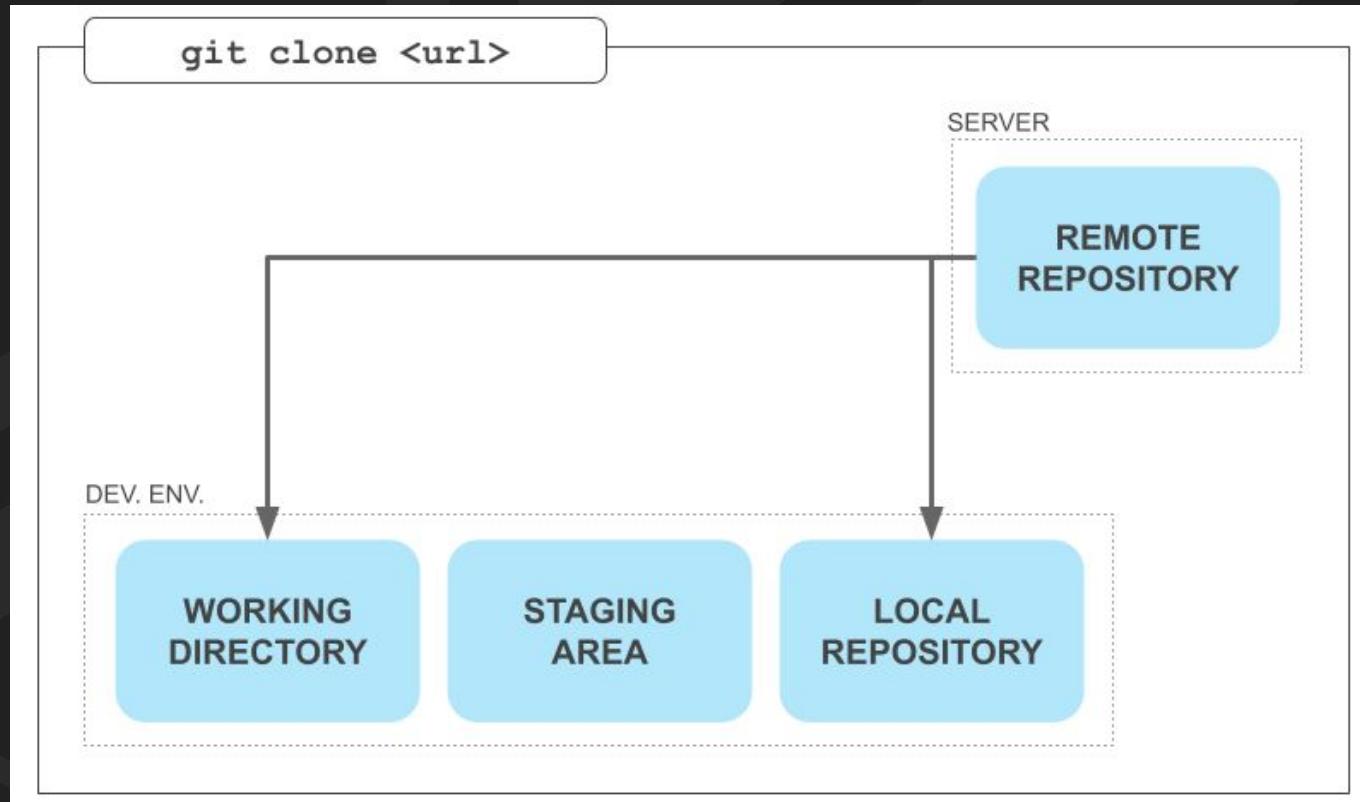

The screenshot shows a GitHub commit interface for a project named 'club-pangolin'. The current branch is 'multiplayer'. The commit message is 'Update water.tres'. The commit content shows a change in the file 'Scenes/Level/water.tres'. The change is highlighted in red, indicating it was added. The code change is:
